END OF TONG WAR ASSURED BY NEW PACT

Termination Of Battle Comes As Laundryman Is Slain Today

New York, June 7.—(UP)—Two representatives of the Hip Sing tong looked across a table at two representatives of the On Leong tong today and in the presence of Police Commissioner Mulrooney and District Attorney Crane put their signatures to a treaty of peace.

The peace treaty was designed to mark the end of the war which has taken the lives of nearly a dozen members of the two tongs in the last few days.

Dan Que, national secretary, and Wong Wah Yil, local president of the Hip Songs, and Pow Yee, national secretary, and Sam Ong, local secretary of the On Leongs, promised solemnly to telegraph the news of the armistice immediately to all branches of the tongs throughout the country and to the Chinese Ambassador in Washington.

LAUNDRYMAN KILLED

Chicago, June 7.—(UP)—Tong war flared anew in Chicago early today when Chan Gong Gan, Chinese laundryman, was shot to death on the far west side.

Near the body of the tong victim, was found a 38 caliber revolver from which five shots had been fired. A witness said another Chinese shot the laundryman and fled. Chan was said to be an On Leong.

Shortly before the shooting was reported Police Capt. John Pendergast had taken precautions which were intended to prevent tong assassinations in Chinatown, which was ominously dark during the night.

Frank Moy, so-called "Mayor of Chinatown," was notified that the On Leong tong was notified that the situation looked dangerous. Pendergast sent special police squads to the Chinese district and said he had hired several Chinese to act as secret service operatives in an effort to learn tong war plans.

May Link Artist's And Model's Deaths

Philadelphia, June 7.—(UP)—The strange shooting of Frank Reed Whiteside, internationally noted artist, may be linked definitely with the murder of Leona Fischbach, the beautiful art student who posed as his model.

Coroner Fred Schwarz has announced that an inquest "in the near future" will hear evidence, painstakingly collected in a secret investigation bearing on the shooting of Whiteside as he answered the doorbell of his home last September.

Miss Fischbach was slain last October by her estranged fiancé William E. Peters, who is serving a life sentence. Her body may be exhumed for a comparison of the bullets in both slayings. It was understood.

Knocked Wife Out Of Their Automobile

A woman lying face downward on the shoulder of the route 2 paving at the NorthWestern viaduct attracted the attention of passing motorists last evening who stopped to investigate. They ascertained upon questioning that the woman, a resident of this city, had started for a ride with her husband. A quarrel ensued and he opened the door and knocked her out of the car, then proceeded on his way. The woman was taken to her home, suffering only from minor bruises about the face sustained when she struck the ground.

Erection Of Still Caused Man's Death

Chicago, June 7.—(AP)—John Romansky's death early today was ascribed to heart disease, brought on by overexertion in the erection of a still and not by fright during a robbery as at first reported.

Police questioned a neighbor, Charles Troy, who admitted the hoax in trying to conceal his part in the erection of a still with Romansky. He was held for the inquest. Troy earlier told police Romansky died after being robbed of his automobile by five men.

TOOK HINT; ARRESTED

HEAT IS BLAMED

Boston, June 7.—(UP)—The heat wave was blamed today for the first sea serpent story of the season.

Annually at least one such serpent is "sighted" off the New England coast. But the 1930 model appears to have been bigger than ever.

Captain Cecil Moulton and 23 members of the crew of the schooner Pollyanna reported yesterday that they saw a serpent that must have been something like 150 feet long off the Georges Banks two weeks ago. Furthermore, they said, the serpent made eyes at the ship's crew.

CANDIDATE'S TROUBLES

Linden, N. J., June 7.—(UP)—Eber Kempson, Independent candidate for mayor of Linden, is still having his troubles.

Kempson, local newspaper editor, advertised his campaign by a large balloon which he raised over his office. Two weeks ago the balloon was shot down. He repaired it and raised it. It came down again, full of buckshot holes. After it was shot down the third time, he put a longer rope on it.

For two weeks the balloon stayed up, and Kempson's campaign progressed nicely. Last night he looked up for the balloon and didn't see it. The rope had been cut.

Paw Paw, June 7.—(UP)—Frank E. Nangle, editor and publisher of the Lee County Times of this place, has been seriously ill this week, following an accident which he suffered a week ago last Monday.

While attending the annual P. T. A. picnic he engaged for a few moments in a friendly game of ball and was unfortunate enough to rupture the muscles of his right leg below the knee causing a painful injury. He got about with the aid of crutches and on Thursday evening, May 29, delivered the commencement address for the graduating class of the Lee Center high school. He suffered severely and the irritation caused by this and other activities developed on Monday of this week in a severe pleurisy. This has kept him confined to his bed up to the present time. He is reported as improving today and it is hoped he'll soon be fully recovered.

Says Production Would Be Incompatible With Public Interest

BY LYLE C. WILSON.

United Press Staff Correspondent. Washington, June 7.—(UP)—The administration braced itself today against an impending volley of Senatorial criticism caused by President Hoover's refusal to produce secret naval negotiation documents requested through Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations committee by Senator Johnson, Repn., Calif.

Acting through Secretary of State Stimson, Mr. Hoover apparently differentiated between a request from the committee for documents relating to the Geneva conference of 1927 and Johnson's two requests, submitted through Borah, for information relating to the London conference.

The request for Geneva conference documents was granted, with the explanation that all had been published previously. In response to one request from Johnson, Stimson sent through Borah a confidential memorandum which he said would answer Johnson as far as possible.

Against Public Interest. "Respecting the other papers called for," Stimson said, referring to Johnson's other request, "I am directed by the President to say that their production would not in his opinion be compatible with the public interests."

Later Stimson issued a press statement emphasizing the confidential nature of informal exchanges between government preliminary to signature of any important treaty. He said suspicion of secret understandings or indiscretions were "nonsense."

Two precedents were cited for the refusal. In 1796 President Washington replied to a House resolution that it would be impolitic to disclose all phases of diplomatic negotiations. In 1922 President Harding refused to give the Senate a complete record of exchanges relating to the Pacific treaty of the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan.

Both Johnson and Borah were of the opinion the Senate, as jointly responsible for treaties, is entitled to complete information regarding their negotiations.

CAPT. CHARLES SMITH TO HOP OFF ON SUNDAY

Will Have Three Companions in Place, The Southern Cross

BULLETIN

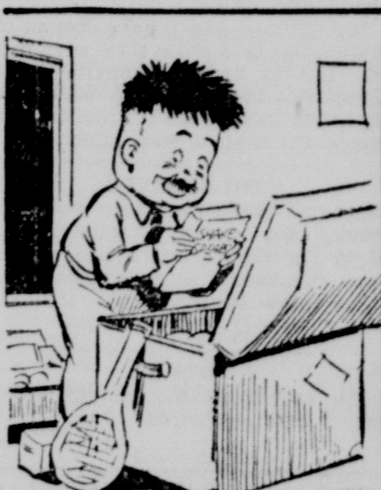

New York, June 7.—(AP)—The weather was not favorable on this side of the Atlantic today for the ocean flight of Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, who announced in Ireland that he would take off at 9 o'clock E. S. T. tonight if he was satisfied with weather reports.

The Weather Bureau here said there was a large area off the Grand Banks that was overcast and cold enough to form ice on plane wings. Weather was ideal, it was said, for the first part of the route, but unfavorable conditions here were regarded as a serious threat to successful outcome of the flight.

Dublin, June 7.—(AP)—Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith hopes to take off on his attempted trans-Atlantic flight tomorrow, Sunday, morning at 2 o'clock if weather reports at that hour are favorable, he announced today.

Under Captain Kingsford-Smith's plan to take off tomorrow at 2 A. M. (9 P. M. EST. tonight) the "Southern Cross" should be far out upon its journey westward over the Atlantic ocean by daybreak. There has been but one westward flight that approximated success, that of the German craft "Bremen" in April, 1929, in whose flight an Irishman, Colonel James C. Fitzmaurice of the Irish Free State, was a distinguished figure. He flew as a pilot with Baron Von Huenfeldt and Captain Herman Koehl. They took off April 12, 1929.

SECOND MURDER OF WEEK STIRS INDIANAPOLIS

Woman Found Strangled To Death On Front Steps Of Home

BULLETIN.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 7.—(UP)—The second murder in Indianapolis within a week drew the attention of police today after Mrs. Myrtle Carr, 48, was found strangled to death on the front steps of her home last night.

No one reported seeing the attack. Five persons were rounded up by deputy sheriffs and held for questioning. Floyd Wilman, 26, son of the slain woman, also was to be taken into custody.

Friends said they had talked with Mrs. Carr shortly before her body was found by a physician, who said he had received a call notifying him that Mrs. Carr was ill.

NEW CLEW IN AUTO DEATH.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 6.—(UP)—Indianapolis and Marion county authorities, aided by police throughout the country, today were tracing the most tangible clue uncovered since a charred body of a man was found in the blazing automobile of Harold Herbert Schroeder near Indianapolis a week ago.

Search was begun for C. C. Ridenhour, believed to have been with Schroeder, a Mobile, Ala., radiator shop operator, shortly before the burning motor car was found. Thomas Riley, insurance company investigator who had made a trip south, uncovered the new clue.

Think Schroeder Alive. Authorities believed Schroeder to be alive but Ridenhour, on whom Schroeder is said to have forged a $1,000 check, has not been reported seen since a few days before the murder. Ridenhour was of Roman Catholic faith and had red hair. Two rosaries were found in the charred automobile and examination of the body of the victim brought evidence that he had red hair. Ridenhour formerly lived in Pittsburgh and two street car tokens of the Pittsburgh Street Railway Co. were found in the debris.

Riley said Ridenhour knew Schroeder in Mobile and had been there

SENATOR WALSH WILL INSIST LOBBY COMMITTEE CONTINUE ITS PROBE OF BISHOP CANNON

Decision As To Action On Southern Clergyman Is Not Reached

Washington, June 7.—(UP)—Senator Walsh (Dem., Mont.), reiterated today his belief that Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Church, South, was in contempt of the Senate when he walked out on the Lobby committee Thursday, even though a quorum of the committee was not present.

"I do not intend to enter into any newspaper controversy with Bishop Cannon," Walsh said, "but I consider that quorum or no quorum, he was in contempt."

The Montana Senator is acting chairman of the committee in the absence of Senator Caraway (Dem., Ark.).

Walsh took issue with Cannon's contention in a statement issued last night that he was not in contempt because a quorum of the committee was not present when he suddenly picked up his papers and walked out.

Three Possible Courses. The Montana Senator said today the Lobby committee has three possible courses in the Cannon case. It can subpoena Cannon, ask the Senate for broader powers, or drop the case, he explained.

He made it plain he does not favor dropping the case but did not say which alternative for action he considered better.

"I feel that this question has been put squarely up to the committee," he said, "and I have made up my own mind."

Replying to Cannon's charge that the committee had been unfair, Walsh said it would be "eminently unfair" to the other witnesses if the committee did not question Cannon in the same way it did the others.

The committee will not determine its procedure until Chairman Caraway returns from Arkansas tomorrow or Monday.

Walsh and Senators Blaine, Repp, Wis., and Borah, Rep., Idaho, other members of the committee, will confer with Caraway. Senator Robinson, Rep., Ind., the fifth member, has indicated he will take no part in the controversy.

BUILDING IN CHICAGO LOOP BURNED TODAY

Old American Express Structure Damaged This Morning

Chicago, June 7.—(UP)—Fire that threatened for a time to spread to skyscrapers for blocks around, badly damaged the old American Express Company building early today. Loss was estimated at $100,000 and one fireman was injured.

Twenty engine companies responded to the series of alarms sent out as the flames leaped from the roof of the seven-story structure located between State and Dearborn streets on Monroe street in the heart of the loop.

Surrounding buildings were showered with sparks and burning bits of wood skyrocketed from the blazing roof. Three firemen were injured by falling glass.

The most seriously endangered of nearby buildings was The Fair, one of the largest department stores in the loop. Its rear wall, separated from the express company building by only a narrow alley, was starting to smoke when firemen managed finally to bring the fire under control.

Man Electrocuted As Car Hit Tower

Dyer, Ind., June 7.—(UP)—John Faager, boilermaker, was electrocuted in an automobile accident a mile north of here.

His car skidded from the highway, struck a power line pole and the impact brought together the two high voltage lines that short circuited, melted and fell upon the machine.

Faager was killed instantly by the 22,000 volts that entered his body and the gasoline tank of his car exploded causing a fire which cremated his body.

DARING COUP RESTORES HIM TO HIS THRONE

He Made Dramatic Return From Exile In Airplane Yesterday

Bucharest, Rumania, June 7.—(AP)—It has been decided that former Crown Prince Carol, who made a dramatic return to Bucharest by airplane from exile yesterday, is to be proclaimed King of Rumania this evening.

The proclaiming of the former Crown Prince as King will remove from the list of European Kings its youngest member. Little King Michael, who ascended the throne on July 20, 1927, when he was not quite six years old.

King Michael, or "Mickey" as he was known by his young friends in the days before he became king, was not to have actually ruled Rumania until he became of age. A Board of Regency, one member of which was his uncle, Prince Nicholas, acted in his stead and he only made his appearance as King on formal occasions.

The dashing Prince left behind him in Paris his red-haired companion of several years, Mme. Magda Lupescu, for love of whom in 1925, he signed away his rights to the throne and established the succession which led two years later to crowning of his infant son, Michael, in his stead.

Wore Army Uniform

He came back home attired in the uniform of a Rumanian General, although bearing the name given by Parliament after his renunciation of the throne, Carol Caraiman. Friends met him at Cotroceni air-drome and went with him to the royal palace where he talked with his brother Nicholas.

The populace and the army received word of the errant Prince's arrival with enthusiasm. The nation was quick to believe that Queen Marie, his mother, while compliant of his intention to return, left her yesterday for Oberammergau, ostensibly to see the Passion Play, knew nothing of his daring coup. She was supposed generally to have planned meeting her oldest son somewhere in Germany and talking the situation over with him.

Prince Nicholas will leave Bucharest June 18 on a long European trip, and Princess Helen, mother of Michael and divorced wife of Carol, is expected not to remain. In Vienna the Dowager Queen Marie received first news of the arrival of her son from the Rumanian Minister who met her at the Vienna railway station where she stopped enroute to Oberammergau.

Her first words were: "As a mother I am very pleased at Carol's enthusiastic welcome home. As to myself, I will always remain the faithful guardian of my people."

Bailey is married and has a 13-year-old daughter. Under terms of the adoption decree he will not be required to change his name.

Mrs. LaCount is the widow of James LaCount, a railroad tie contractor, and has lived with the Baileys for several years.

BARK BOUND BROTHERHOOD—

Francis G. Blair.
STAND alone within these woods
And somehow seem to feel
Around me bark bound brotherhoods
That make their mute appeal.

The oaks, the sycamores, the pines,
The walnuts, elms and spruce
Each bound by secret grips and signs
Like Masons, Elks, or Moose.

For preservation of their kind—
For natural right to be—
Each leafy brotherhood combined
By nature's own decree.

Their ancient creeds, unwritten, unsung,
Their ritual and code,
Were fashioned when the world was young—
Unit for man's abode.

Around them raged the elements
And flying foes in swarms,
The rise and fall of continents,
The thunderbolts and storms.

But through the years each brotherhood
Preserved its noble breed—
Against all foes triumphant stood
Till faced by human greed.

As now 'gainst ax and dynamite
And all devouring flame,
They wage their last despairing fight
To save their lives and names.

I stand alone within the woods
To warn my human race
If we destroy these brotherhoods
We work our own disgrace.

Two musical numbers were then given. Master Hubert Auman, accompanied on the piano by his mother gave a cornet solo, "Melody in F." Miss Marie Moore, a piano solo, "Valse." These numbers were beautifully done, and very much enjoyed by everyone.

It proved a very pleasant evening for everyone present. The guests left a post card shower for Mrs. Scholl which she values highly, and on departing all wished Mrs. Scholl long continued health and happiness. Brilliant Morning Wedding Solemnized At St. Anne's Church Gorgeously bedecked in a myriad of peonies and greenery in honor of the happy occasion, lovely St. Anne's Catholic church, for the first time since its dedication, served as the setting for a wedding at half past nine o'clock this morning, when Miss Helen Sullivan and Dr. David L. Murphy exchanged their vows, with Father T. G. Flynn officiating at the nuptial high mass.

The bride was entirely in white, with an exquisite gown of net and a billowy tulle veil, surmounted by a fitted cap of lace. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white roses. As the strains of the V... filled the church and she passed down the aisle on the arm of her father, Thomas Sullivan, who gave her in marriage, she presented a truly beautiful and charming picture of a bride.

Miss Katherine Sullivan attended her sister as maid of honor and wore peach colored organdie, while the bridesmaids, Miss Elizabeth Hennessey and Louise Murphy, wore gowns of dainty point d'esprit, one in orchid and the other pastel green, with hats and bouquets to harmonize. Young Dr. Murphy had as best man his brother Edward, and the ushers were Bertram Whitcombe, and Willard Jones.

Just before the ceremony John Ward of Sterling, sang "All For You" and Mrs. George Van Nuys sang "It is Not Because Your Heart Is Mine," by Lord, accompanied by Miss Celeste Ward, of Sterling, at the organ. St. Anne's choir sang the nuptial mass, and during the offertory the tender "Ave Maria" of Gounod was sung by Mrs. Van Nuys. At the end of the services the wedding party departed amid the stirring measures of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Miss Ward.

The wedding breakfast was served at the Dixon Country Club to a hundred guests, representing the families and most intimate friends of the happy pair, after which Dr. Murphy and his bride left for a honeymoon which will be spent at Lake Louise, Canada, Seattle, cities in California, and thence home by the southern route.

Dr. and Mrs. Murphy are members of a large circle of friends in Dixon, both having been born and reared here. Mrs. Murphy attended St. Mary's College, Notre Dame, Indiana. Dr. Murphy is a graduate of Notre Dame University and Northwestern University Medical School, and he took his internship at St. Joseph's Hospital, Chicago. He has begun the practice of medicine in conjunction with his father, Dr. E. S. Murphy, who has long been one of the city's well-known and best-loved citizens. The young pair are entering their new life together under very favorable auspices and they have the sincere wishes of all their friends for great and continued happiness.

NEW YORK-PARIS FASHIONS

No fad has been more universally accepted and with such response as the vogue of jeweled clips. The clip was first featured for wear on the turban or beret, and then matching clips were placed on the edge of the cuff, at the neckline, or on a bag, for day wear. Now they carry over into the evening mode, and are worn on the shoulder strap, at the edge of a décolletage, or at the belt as a jeweled buckle. For evening, they are elaborately designed after real jewels in rhinestones and simulated stones may be had to suit the individual taste, and to blend with the costume. The sketch suggests the way a set of jeweled clips may lend an enhancing sparkle to an evening gown.

The vogue of the fan, a truly charming evening accessory, grows with the restoration of the feminine mode. Adorable little tulle or lace affairs, reminiscent of other days, faintly complement the quaint frock, while gorgeous ostrich feathers or fans are appropriate accessories for the more sophisticated type of evening gown. Pyralis mountings usually match the lace and tulle fans in color, and often the more elaborate fans. The fan illustrated, of huge blue willow plumes, has matching blue pyralis sticks.

After the meeting these were sent to the Auxiliaries having a net gain in members and in subscriptions to "The Friend". The Misses Evelyn Street and Helen Marth entertained with a piano duo. For an encore each played a solo, both of which were enjoyed.

Mrs. McKenney read an interesting poem showing all the things that are done with "Our Foreign Missionary Dollar". As this was an agricultural program, Mrs. Will Hintz told of how we are meeting the rural problem in India, while Miss Morgan told a little of agriculture in China. An article was read by Mrs. Clara Bunnell, entitled "Out Of The Kraals", contrasting the living conditions in an old style African village with its huts of fifth and a sanitary Christian one.

One new member was reported for June by Mrs. Bennett. The committee for new members next month the north side; and Mrs. Clayton are Mrs. Dawson and Mrs. Mall on and Mrs. D. C. Leake on the south side.

FASHION HINTS—

Linen Coats—Colored linen coats are very smart over silk frocks, or cotton ones for summer. Lighter than navy blue makes one charming one with cape sleeves and smartly tailored lines.

New Handkerchiefs—The bigger and daintier you can have your handkerchiefs, the smarter they are. Paris sends some in fine linen, man's size, with red, white and blue narrow stripes making a crazy quilt border of triangles.

Boleto Suits—The bolero suit, of printed silk or plain flat crepe makes one of the most popular of summer outfits. Batiste, organdie or other lingerie sleeveless blouses are the accepted fashion.

Short Sleeves—Elbow sleeves emerge as quite the best for daytime wear. If your arms are especially attractive, sleeveless frocks are all right for the offices. But unless they are, the elbow sleeve is a flattering substitute.

Florence Trim—A natural linen hat, starched and blocked with multi-room brim, has an unusual trim in the form of a founce of three-toned rose pleated grosgrain ribbon which extends across the back of the hat, attached at the usual banding line.

Calico Lining—A blue tweed suit, with a dash of lighter blue, beige and red in its mixture, has a stunning lining of blue and red figured calico for its coat and its sleeveless blouse.

What Paris is Wearing

By K. D'ORSAY

PARIS—The latest Paris fashion has turned out to be nothing more than a copy of the fig-leaf of the Garden of Eden. Eve's ideas on clothes are sufficiently valued by modern Parisienne women that they are taking to wearing at least part of their clothes in her manner. Leaves—but jeweled ones—are appearing on the new Spring clothes worn by women in the French capital.

The first jeweled leaves to be worn in Paris appeared on a hat—a little turban made entirely of felt leaves with a single motif at one side set with jewels. Its success resulted in a downpour of leaves in the jewel shops of Rue de la Paix. Leaf necklaces, leaf rings, leaves for shoe buckles and for brooches, were launched by every designer.

At present they are the favorite jeweled decorations for the plain black evening clothes that are part of every woman's standard equipment in Paris. These jeweled leaves are usually of large size, and reproduce authentically the lines and shapes of natural leaves.

with a jabot front of the same material.

Fabric Sets—Have a beret, purse and long gloves made of colored linen, pique, checked gingham or any other dress fabric and you could not be smarter in your idea.

Zipper Bags—New beach bags are oblong and roundish and fasten from end to end with zippers. They are not hard to make of fancy cretonne or hand-blocked linen. You can make your beach hats to match them.

Cotton Frock—Wide-wide pink pique makes a perfectly lovely and dainty little summer frock with flaring skirt and double breasted, sleeveless gilet.

Starched Linen—Smart for sports is a natural colored starched linen hat with irregular brim that lifts on one side for a little bandeau with stitched bow in medium blue linen.

Square Neck—The deep square neck is new for simple summer evening gowns. Sometimes it takes little puff sleeves, which make it quaint. Other times it takes no sleeves at all.

Kid Boutonnieres—Lovely little boutonnieres for the silk suit come in colored kid, a zinnia, in navy blue and white, has one white leaf and one blue.

Entertained M. B. C. Club at Luncheon

Mrs. Gus Schweinsberg entertained delightfully at her home on Wednesday the M. B. C. club at an elegantly appointed 1 o'clock luncheon. The centerpiece for the table was composed of gorgeous oriental poppies, with nut cups and tapers in harmonizing shades. Large bouquets of peonies were gracefully arranged in the spacious living rooms. After the delicious luncheon the guests enjoyed the remainder of the afternoon in music and reminiscences. The next meeting of the club will be a picnic at Lowell Park July 2.

MOVING THE MOUNTAIN.

When Paul the apostle was casting about in his mind for a feat that could stand as a symbol of the impossible, he hit upon the moving of a mountain. The faith that could move a mountain—that, to Paul, was the strongest expression possible.

Were Paul alive today, however, he would have to look for a new symbol. Not that our faith has progressed; hardly that, in an age of skeptics. But we can move mountains, at any rate.

In Seattle there has been a mountain called Denny Hill. To be sure, one has to stretch things a trifle to call it a mountain. But at any rate, it was a very high hill, covering some 90 acres of ground and towering above the tops of the office buildings.

This mountain, or hill, was very much in Seattle's way. It loomed up on the edge of the business district and choked off the expansion that Seattle needed. So, a year ago, Seattle decided to get it out of the way. Steam shovels, long conveyor belts and a fleet of scows were put to work, and Denny Hill began to crumble.

By next fall this particular mountain will be no more. Reduced to mud and stones, it will be distributed all over the bottom of Puget Sound. In its place will be a 90-acre tract of perfectly level ground, ready for new stores, office buildings, railway stations, hotels and apartment houses.

There isn't anything so very out of way in this performance. Seattle doesn't seem greatly excited about it, and the job has not drawn much attention elsewhere. But there is something about it that strikes us as extremely romantic and highly significant.

Moving a mountain . . . just part of the day's work, to an American city; just as Chicago found it all part of the day's work to make a river run uphill. The supposedly immutable forces of nature, then, are not immutable at all. The world is not in the least fixed and unchangeable. Inanimate nature's long period of overlordship has ended.

That is the sort of thing which this Seattle performance symbolizes.

Americans have been criticized frequently for being too obsessed with material values, with taking more delight in accomplishments in the world of material things than in the intangibles of creative art. Well, why not? Isn't there something tremendously important in this conquest of nature? Isn't it rather momentous that men have discovered that the physical world can be remade?

Seattle's removal of a mountain is the sort of thing, really, that calls for poems of praise and jubilation. It is a thing to exult in. We are materialists—because we are triumphing over materialism.

AN INEFFECTIVE GESTURE.

Raymond Duncan, who goes about clad in Grecian robes and sandals as a means of expressing his disapproval of modern industrial civilization, drew a curious crowd when he went down to the battery in New York City the other day, dipped a bucket of salt water from the harbor and carried it home to make some salt as a gesture of sympathy for Mahatma Gandhi.

Of practical, utilitarian value the stunt had nothing whatever. As a gesture it is probably very fine; but one doubts, somehow, if the whole thing will make very much impression anywhere.

A New York newspaper irreverently suggests that some Englishman now ought to distill a flask of alcohol from potato peelings and send it to some American scoundrel who is in jail for violating the prohibition law; and it is probable that Mr. Duncan's act will arouse more jocular comment of this nature than genuine sympathy for the famous Indian rebel.

The fellow who named the new planet "Pluto" must have been keenly interested in gastronomy.

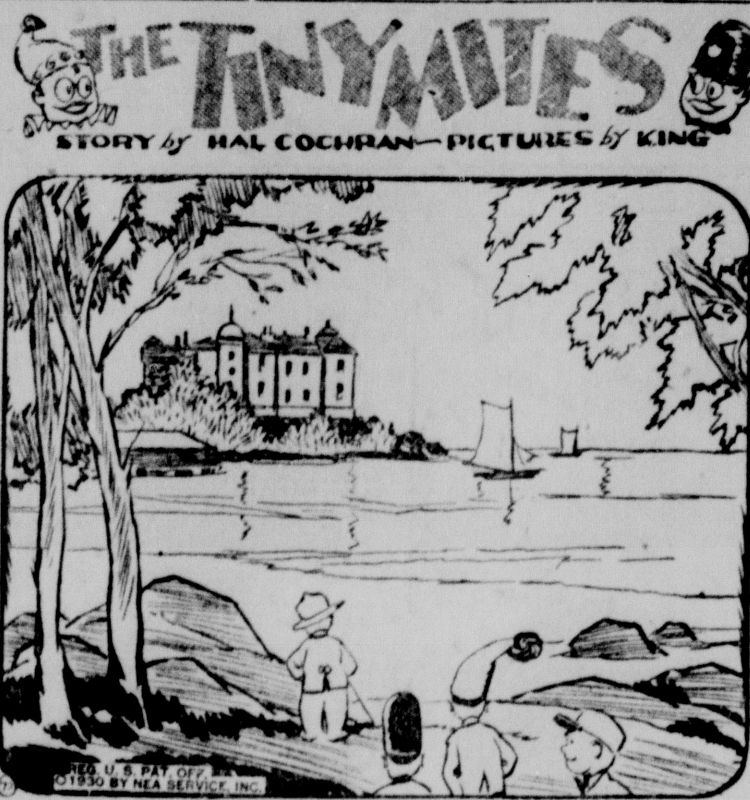

John D. Rockefeller was made a Boy Scout in New Jersey the other day during a $150,000 fund Scout drive. Of course, he'll soon be expected to do a good turn.

Peggy Joyce, who announced she will bask in birthday clothes on her private beach in the Mediterranean this summer, probably is intent on proving there is, after all, something nude under the sun.

One move which might help considerably in the nationwide drive soon to be launched to eliminate defective eyesight would be to go back to short skirts again.

A British chemist predicts that cellulose, the raw material of paper, may soon be obtained from the air. Some day that's going to be news.

American talkies, it is reported, are meeting with great success in Bombay. There's a case where ignorance of American dialogue is bliss.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Wee Clowny cried. "I'll try my luck, but I'll just bet that I get stuck with some real crazy fortune. Here's my coin. You do the rest." The flute man said. "All right, my lad, and I just hope that you'll be glad when you have read your fortune. Now my bird will do its best." Then, to the bird, the man said, "Hey! Get busy there—and right away. Pull out a card for this small lad. Give him the best you can." The card brought forth a laugh, real shrill. It simply said that Clowny would grow up to be a man.

"Oh, my! That is not right at all," cried Clowny. "I am always small. I'm not supposed to grow up, so the fortune CAN'T be right. For once the bird has made a miss. You see, we are all are just like this; real small and that is why we're called the Tynmites."

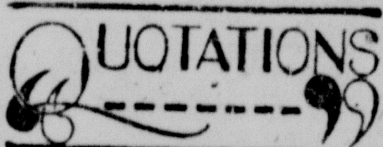

The others bought their fortunes too and then the next thing that they knew, the Travel Man cried. "Come along! We're going to leave here quick. To Finland we are going to go. You'll like it mighty well, I know. We'll cross the Gulf of Bothnia. You'll think the trip is slick."

They soon left Stockholm far behind. Wee Clowny said, "I wouldn't mind a bite of lunch 'cause I am just as hungry as can be." The Travel Man replied, "It won't be long until we eat, so don't get too impatient, little lad. Just leave this all to me."

At Heisingfors, they went ashore. It wasn't long until once more they saw some wondrous scenery beneath the bright sunlight. Near rugged rocks they stood to gaze. Said Scouty, "Well, in all my days I've never seen a harbor quite as pretty. It's a sight."

(The Tynmites meet a friendly Finnish girl in the next story.)

"A man can't have the same feeling toward a woman who is standing on her own feet as he had toward one who was standing on his."

RECIPROCITY TREATY

On June 7, 1854, the Marcy-Elgin treaty between the United States and Great Britain, which regulated reciprocal commercial relations with Canada and Newfoundland, was signed.

Under terms of the treaty the natural products of each country were to be exchanged without duty. The articles exchanged were to be the produce of the farm, forest, mine and fisheries. The treaty also provided for the liberal fishing privileges for American fishermen and mutual transportation rights.

Although the treaty was to remain in force for 10 years it was actually in operation for 11. At the outset it was beneficial to both contracting parties but as time progressed the preponderance of commercial advantage was heavily in favor of Canada. One of the reasons why the United States abrogated the treaty was that Canada extended sympathy and assistance to Confederate refugees in their hostile movements along the border during the Civil War.

ACCEPTING LIFE
BY DR. HORATIO M. POLLOCK,
Albany, N. Y.

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. The headquarters of the Institute are at 1331 G. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

In every active, ambitious person there arises a conflict between what he wants to do and what he is able to do—between desire and ability. He wants a large salary or a large income from his business; but his earning power may not be above the average. He wants a position of high rank, yet lacks the necessary qualifications or has no means of obtaining it. He wants fine clothes, an expensive automobile, and a luxurious home but does not have sufficient wealth to obtain any of these things. He wants a mate of exceptional beauty and charm and he may be able to find no one who meets his expectations. In these and in many other ways he fails to satisfy his instinctive longing.

His attitude in the face of these disappointments is a test of his real worth. If he adopts the unwholesome habit of blaming others for his lack of success; if he becomes sullen and angry at every rebuff; if he seeks consolation by telling a hard luck story to anyone who will lend a sympathetic ear; if he loses interest in his work and in his personal appearance; if he indulges in worry or day-dreaming; if he retaliates for fancied insults or injuries—if he does any of these things—he will not only fail to meet the test but will render himself less able to satisfy other desires. He may even undermine his mental and physical health.

On the other hand, if he meets disappointment with renewed courage and vigor; if he puts the ideal of service above the hope of reward; if he places a moderate estimate on his ability and strives cheerfully for the good things within his reach; and if he holds himself rigidly to careful physical well-being, he will gain strength and may gradually attain a mastery of himself and of his field of work that will yield much personal satisfaction and win for him adequate material rewards and a large measure of social esteem.

Charley Root turned in his best pitching performance of the season, holding the Robins to two hits. Charles Grimm homered in the second. Dazzy Vance, ancient Cub's nemesis, was chased from the mound in the sixth and Dudley and Newsom had no better luck.

George Earnshaw relieved LeRoy Mahaffey in the ninth, with two out and potential tying and winning runs on base, and fanned Heinie Manush to give the Philadelphia Athletics a 5 to 4 victory over the St. Louis Browns. The victory increased Philadelphia's American League lead to a game and a half, the second place Washington Senators encountered rain at Detroit.

Adam Comorosky's ninth inning home run gave Pittsburgh a 4 to 3 decision over the Boston Braves, and the Pirates moved into third place in the National League, one point ahead of New York and St. Louis.

The New York Giants defeated St. Louis, 10 to 7, and moved into a tie with the Cards for fourth place. The defeat was the tenth in eleven starts for the Cardinals, who previously had won 17 out of 18 games to take the league lead.

Errors by Rhyme and Cicero after two were out in the eighth inning started Cleveland on a five run rally which gave the Indians a 9 to 4 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Philadelphia pounded the offerings of three Cincinnati pitchers for 16 hits, 11 of which were for extra bases, and defeated the Reds, 14 to 5. Southern led the attack with four doubles and a single.

London.—America was certain of the women's singles championship in the North London Lawn Tennis tournament today, with Miss Sarah Paley of Brookline, Mass., playing Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California and London.

Miss Paley advanced to the finals yesterday by winning a hard fought match from Miss Mary Greer, 16-year-old Kansas City, Mo. 7-5, 6-3. Miss Ryan won from Miss E. R. Clark, England, 6-2, 6-1.

Philadelphia.—Jim London, St. Louis Greek wrestler, has been recognized by the National Box Association as world heavyweight wrestling champion.

Londos won the crown by defeating Dick Shikat of Germany, recognized as champion by the New York and Pennsylvania state commissions. Twenty-five thousand fans sat through a drizzling rain for one hour and 23 minutes before Londos scored the fall with a combined Japanese headlock and leg hold.

Tony Roebuck of Tulsa, Okla., former Haskell College football star, was taken to the Methodist Hospital immediately after he defeated Jack Washburn of Chicago, in a preliminary, and was operated on for appendicitis.

Orangeburg, N. Y.—Criticism leveled at Jack Sharkey's condition and training methods five days before his heavyweight championship bout with Max Schmeling at Yankee Stadium Thursday night failed to ruffle the American champion and his handlers today.

Former fighters commended as follows after watching Sharkey in action:

Joe Lynch, former bantamweight champion: "Sharkey is boxing flat footed."

Kilbane and Lynch agree that Sharkey, on past performances, should defeat Schmeling, but they do not think he looks anything like world's champion at this stage of his training.

Endicott, N. Y., June 7.—(UP)—The possibility that Joe Jacobs will not be reinstated by the New York State Athletic Commission to serve as second for Max Schmeling in the German fight with Jack Sharkey, today threw a pall of gloom over Schmeling's training camp.

Jacobs and Schmeling were barred "for life" by the commission for refusing to go through with a contract to fight Phil Scott and although Schmeling was reinstated for his bout with Sharkey, the commission has failed to take action on Jacobs' application for a license.

Jacobs is confident that his license will be granted at Tuesday's meeting of the commission and refused to consider a course of action in case he is refused, to second his fighter.

Two Race Horses Destroyed By Fire

Lemont, Ill., June 7.—(UP)—Two race horses, one a promising filly imported from England, were burned to death today when the palatial Arrowbrook racing stable of Stuyvant Peabody, millionaire Chicago coal dealer, was destroyed by fire.

Peabody said the loss of Bossie Hattie, the 2-year-old filly, was incalculable and that the stable was valued at $50,000. He said Bossie Hattie had run a furlong in 11 seconds in the glass-enclosed track at the stable and he had expected to race her next year in the rich 3-year-old stakes.

Mrs. Robert McCarthy, wife of Peabody's trainer, first saw the stable in flames but was unable for some time to call the Lemont fire department because the telephones were out of order.

An unnamed yearling, son of Cherokee, also was burned to death. Nine other race horses from the Peabody Stables, ordinarily housed with Bossie Hattie, were taken to Washington Park yesterday, or they probably would have been burned, too, Peabody said.

Cubs On Rampage Of Heavy Hitting

Chicago, June 7.—(AP)—The National League champion Chicago Cubs, apparently have decided to play baseball on a "ten or no count" basis.

Though crippled by the death of Hal Carlson and Rogers Hornsby injury, the Cubs not only have won nine straight games, but in each of their last five battles have produced not less than 10 runs. The "ten or more" schedule started last Sunday when the Cubs won over Pittsburgh, 16 to 4. Since then the counts have been: 15 to 2, 18 to 10 and 10 to 7, against Boston; and 13 to 0 yesterday over Brooklyn. Their average is a fraction better than 14 runs a game.

Only one member of the regular lineup outside of the pitchers has batted less than 333 during the period. Captain Charley Grimm today had a mark during the five games of 579, while only Clyde Beck has failed to slug.

Fanned 19 Batters But Lost His Game

Decatur, Ill., June 7.—(AP)—A leading candidate for the title of "most unlucky baseball player" of the season is young Tom Bridges, right-handed pitcher of the Evansville, Ind., Three Eye League club. In a night game against Decatur last night Bridges, who went to Evansville a year ago from the University of Tennessee, struck out 19 batters in eight innings and lost 5 to 2. Five of the seven hits off Bridges were clustered in the first two innings and his teammates couldn't do enough hitting off Spear of Decatur to help him out.

The book shows that Frank Shaw of the Boston Union Association club fanned 18 men in nine innings back in 1884—the only figures on the subject.

Independents Meet Wire Makers Sunday

The Dixon Independents will meet the Reynolds Wire Company team Sunday afternoon at the field on Van Buren avenue. It is the latter's Sunday to use the field, both teams alternating, and the Independents will be considered the visitors in this instance. Pettys and Weeks will form the battery for the Independents with McClintock and Condon working for the wire makers. The game will be called promptly at 2:45 and a good attendance is anticipated.

SKAT LEAGUE MEET

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—Delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada are expected here June 7 and 8 for the 33rd annual congress of the North American Skat league. Skat has nothing to do with cats, as the name might indicate to those unfamiliar with it, but is a popular card game.

TWINS STAY ALIKE

SULLIVAN, Ind.—(UP)—Twin sisters, who not only dressed alike and looked alike, but also preferred the same vocations, will be graduated from the Union hospital nursing school at Terre Haute this year. They are Misses Lara and Laree Dickerson of Sullivan county.

He was in Dixon this morning at 10:30 and appeared very able to finish his drive. During the entire time, the motor has not been stopped and Marmon stated that he was averaging 22.6 miles on a gallon of gas without additional lubricating oil.

URGES DIVERSIFICATION

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(UP)—The farm problem will not be solved by moving one-third of the rural populations into the cities with the remaining two-thirds operating larger farms, Dean J. F. Cox, of Michigan State College believes. Instead, he asserts, diversified farming is going to make agriculture a paying proposition either on a large or small scale.

The burden of the presidency has visibly grayed President Hoover, a photo was taken in November, 1927, when Mr. Hoover was secretary of commerce, a short time prior to his resignation to run for the presidency. The upper photo is one of his latest taken just a few days ago.

A DANGER TUMBLE

"THAT'S MY RANGE"

We were showing a bride our new line of Estates. She admired the beauty of this modern range. She was interested in its many features. But when we told her about the famous Estate oven that insures perfect baking results every time, she became excited—"Ah!" she exclaimed, "that's my range."

Estate GAS RANGES

Yours to choose—in gleaming Ivory with Jade Green or Ebony trim, also in the standard French Gray and White.

New T-type gas cocks—backed with solid enamel panel to hide the piping.

For one and all—inexperienced cooks, expert cooks—there's no range like the Estate. For only the Estate has the "double-boiler" oven—everything you bake in it comes out uniform in shape, in color, in texture. And, if you like, you may have it insulated—the Heat-Retaining Oven, that keeps the heat in where it belongs.

Of course, Estate has many other exclusive features that you'll appreciate, such as: ThermEstate Oven Heat Control, that keeps watch over the baking time and temperature; oven racks that slide in and out like cabinet drawers; Rigidraw smokeless broiler pan; stay-cool door handles; easy-to-clean, one-piece cooking top; convenient utensil drawer; vitreous enamel finish, inside and out, with every nut, bolt and hinge concealed.

Come in—see our display of handsome 1930 Estate Gas Ranges—let us tell you how easily you may own one.

Honor Dead Soldiers
Friday was one of the most perfect Memorial Days that we have ever had, and all of Franklin Grove and community were ready to do honor to their soldier dead. For several years it has taken the form of a "Home Coming" as well, and many were here from other places greeting one another.

The exercises started at 1:30 with a bandconcert on main street by the famous Rochelle band, who then proceeded to the Presbyterian church where they headed the line of parade to the cemetery. The usual services and decoration of graves was held at the cemetery. The program at the Camp Ground was carried out as advertised.

Following the band concert in the evening the renown trio of entertainers "The Three Doctors," Pratt, Sherman and Rudolph, whose radio broadcasts from station WMAQ are popular, entertained for one hour. This was a great attraction to visit a town the size of Franklin, but the audience was not as large as had been expected.

You could spend several hours at their home looking at the flowers, trees and garden.

—for free replacement of any material—including both parts and labor—that may prove defective, within the terms of the standard warranty.

—that this replacement will be carried out by any Chevrolet dealer in the United States—regardless of where the owner may have traveled during the warranty period.

Backing this policy is one of the largest service organizations in the automotive industry—consisting of over 10,000

Woman's Club Notes
The club met with Mrs. Lorenzo Brewer, Monday afternoon. Ten members responded to roll call. Mrs. Brundage delivered the iris roots which she had taken orders for at the iris show. Mrs. Brown gave a financial report of the iris show. Mrs. Elizabeth Durkes and Mrs. Ruth Hussey were authorized to secure a book, suitable for a scrapbook and to keep in it all clippings and accounts of club events. The club also voted to send for a book on forestry which will furnish material for several conservation programs in next year's work and which will be donated to the library. It was decided to have a picnic on the camp ground June 24th, from 4 to 8 p. m., with a picnic supper at 6. Club members and their families are invited. Each will furnish her own dishes and silver and bring sandwiches and a dish to pass. The club will furnish the lemonade. A circular discussing the merits of calcium chloride as a settler of dust was read and Mrs. Brown was appointed to secure particulars about the preparation. Club members would like to give it a trial on some much used street, to see if it will do what is claimed for it. It was decided to hold a mid-summer vegetable and flower show perhaps early in August, so keep this in mind and plan to place your exhibits in this show. Further particulars.

Mrs. Elizabeth Durkes read an article concerning "Women on Juries," which informed us that a number of states already have women jurors and that as long as women have a right to vote it should be their duty to serve on juries as well.
Keep the Gates
A movement is on foot by the C. & N. W. Railway to remove the gates at the main street crossing and place wig-wags at all of the crossings. While of course everyone knows that each crossing should be protected, will to lose the main street gates after having had them so long and so many people drive to that crossing owing to the safety of it, we feel that it would be too bad to give up those gates.
Instead of removing the gates we already have we would certainly urge more gates as they are after all the only safety one can really depend on. What we really need is gates at the west and east crossing in addition to the one now on the main crossing, then place wigwags and bells at the depot and service station crossings. We understand a hearing to decide this proposition will be held in Chicago before the Commerce Commission on June 12.

According to Harmon many of the cars have been bought recently and their owners are seeking to "get by" without licenses until July first when they will only have to pay for a six months' license.

ERRORGRAMS

There's Scrambled

10UTINTIN

Not what you think.

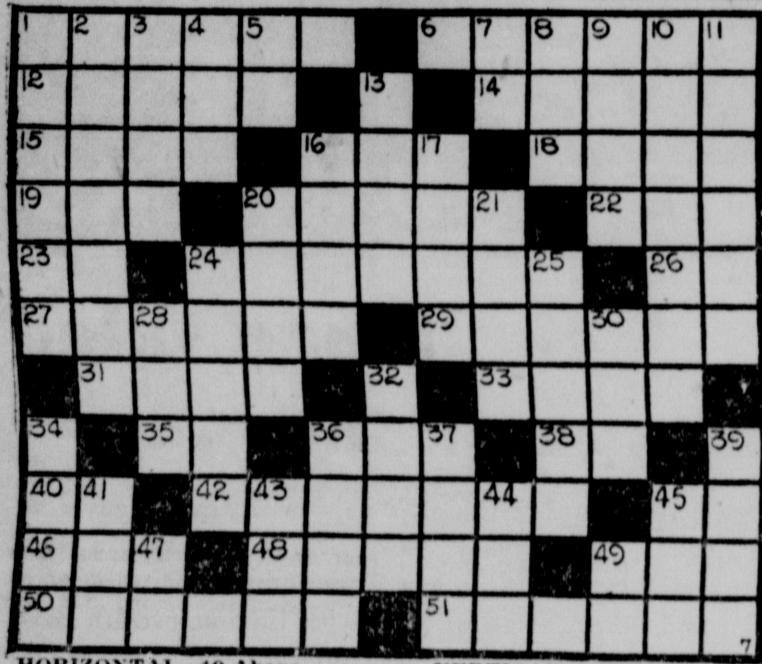

(Copyright, 1930, NEA Service, Inc.)

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scrambled word below—and unscramble it, by switching the letters around. Grade yourself 20 for each of the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it. Monday we'll explain the mistake and tell you the word. Then you can see how near a hundred you bat.

FRIDAY'S CORRECTIONS

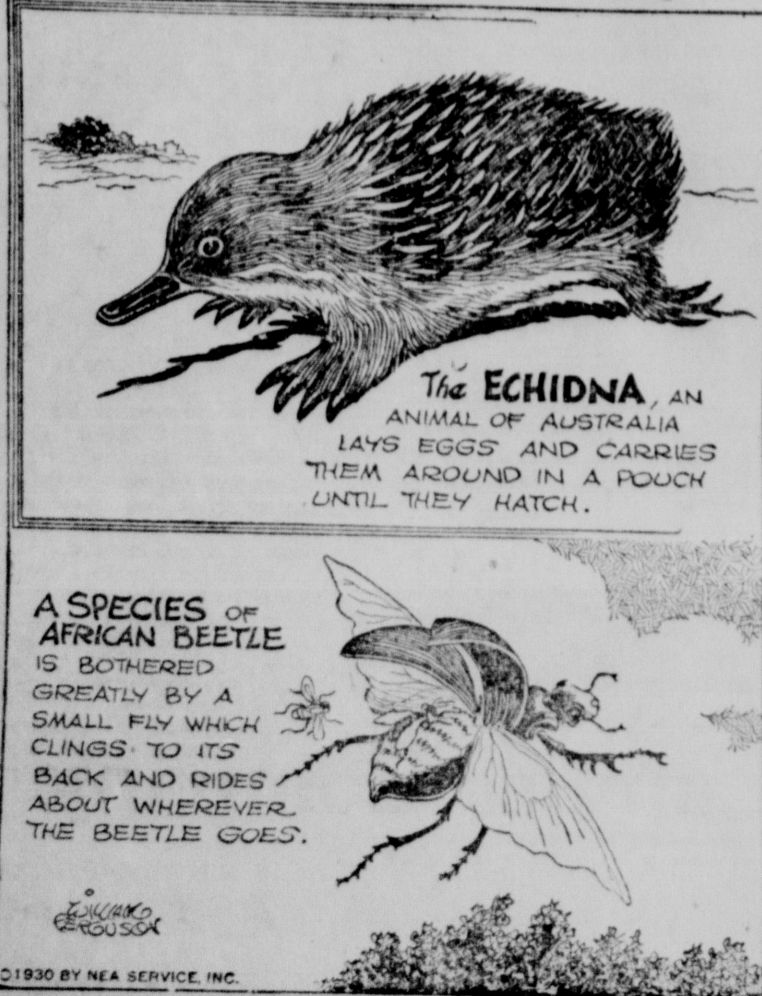

(1) The dive is a somersault, not a "jackknife." (2) "Jackknife" is spelled incorrectly. (3) The springboard supports are reversed—the forward one should be below the board and the rear one above it. (4) There is no ladder leading up to the springboard stand. (5) The scrambled word is SUBURB.

ILLINOIS SPORT CIRCLES HIT BY 1930 GRADUATION

Many Stars To Receive Diplomas From U. I. On Wednesday

Champaign, Ill. June 7.—(AP)—Although the parade of cap and gown clad athletes past President David Kinley at the University of Illinois Wednesday will elicit sorrow from all the coaches, Bob Zuppke, veteran football mentor, will have occasion to shed the saltiest tears.

A group of athletic youngsters were the spark-plug of the Illini attack in all major sports except football the past year, showing many veterans in the background. One of the greatest classes of football players ever in attendance at the University of Illinois, without the "Youths" threat last fall but now must heed the call of graduation.

Zuppke has but two regulars "Pete" Yanuskius, fleet halfback, and Ed Kaval, center, for the foundation of his 1930 grid machine. Hills, a tackle, and Steinman, end, are other lettermen who will be back but neither played regularly last fall.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

NATALIE CONVERSE, jealous of her husband's friendship with BERNAUDINE LAMONT, leaves him. Alan is consoling his secretary, PHILIPPA WEST, who is seeking to make an advantageous marriage.

Natalie returns, and Alan realizes that he loves her, but the entanglement that Philippa has cleverly engineered prevents him from attempting a reconciliation. Philippa refuses to release him.

Natalie goes to Alan's office and will not endure, uses a letter from Bernadine in a plot to discredit Natalie. She changes the name of a stock Bernadine wants to buy to one that is worthless. Bernadine comes to the office after the order has gone through and discovers the change that has been made in the letter. Suspicion directed by Philippa, points to Natalie. Alan believes her guilty.

Natalie is stricken to utter hopelessness by the accusation. Alan leaves her and goes to Bernadine to offer to reconcile her. Not long after this Alan is hastily summoned to her bedside. Her last wish is to see her son, Bobby, to care for her father, Philippa, and puts her in charge of the family house.

Natalie, living with an aunt in Philadelphia, reads of Bernadine's death. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIV

NATALIE sat up early one bright and shining morning and stood meditating at her window. Across the street a woman was cleaning the white steps. She cleaned them every morning, excepting Sunday. Natalie wondered if it made her unhappy to let them go uncleaned for a single day.

The hold of habit and custom! Steps—or husbands. Was there so much difference in the weight of responsibility they placed upon the one supposed to care for them?

Didn't her steps worry this woman as much as her neglect of Alan worried Natalie? Natalie wondered about it, and wondered too if she were losing her sense of values.

She hadn't been able, since reading of Bernadine's Lamont's death, to shake off a feeling that she ought to do as her Aunt Emma advised, and go to Alan.

Had Alan been merely fascinated with Bernadine, or had he really loved her? This was the question Natalie weighed almost every moment of her waking hours.

Aunt Emma said seriously one day: "You know, honey, I suspect a man can love any number of times, but I'll bet my biscuit recipe against Dora Lane's that he loves one woman best of the lot just the same, whether he loves her first, or last."

She had said no more; Natalie had understood. And she asked herself this too as she stood watching the scrubbing going on across the street: "What woman had Alan loved most?"

AND there was still another question.

Someone must have come to visit at the house across the street. A chubby little baby face was to be seen at the windows occasionally. Natalie grew to wait for it and to wait for the march down the immaculate steps for the morning and afternoon walks.

The sight of the little round figure holding to the hand of the pretty young woman beside it—the mother Natalie was certain—had first brought this question to Natalie's mind, and there it remained.

Bernadine Lamont had had a little son. What would become of him?

She seemed to remember that Alan had said Bernadine had no relatives. Would Alan himself take the boy?

She came to believe that he would.

And then she told her aunt that she was going back to Alan. "I want him," she said simply. "On any terms. If he thinks me a vile thing, well, I am to blame. He was patient with my silly jealousy for a long time. Alan, I'm sure."

The older woman looked searchingly into her hopeful eyes. "Umph," she said, "and how do you expect to convince him that you had nothing to do with that letter? Can you let that drop, my dear, and be happy?"

"I'll have to," Natalie answered. "But I'll confess that it's been a hard fight to forgive him for doubting me even with my abominable behavior to influence him."

Her aunt nodded. "I see you've made up your mind," she said understandingly. "Well, I wouldn't undertake to advise you anyway but you want to be sure when you tackle a new job, that you know the size of it. Natalie, dear."

"I've thought of it night and day," Natalie told her. "If Alan won't believe me, I won't, but he might forgive me if he thought I deserved it, and I've thought of a way to atone for the crime I didn't commit. I'm going to tell him that I want to bring up Bernadine Lamont's son as my own."

Aunt Emma was perturbed. "But, my dear, just to make up a quarrel..."

"I want to do it!" Natalie exclaimed. "I may be blaming myself for too much wrong, but I've a feeling that if I hadn't been so unreasonably jealous of Alan, all this would never have happened."

"Perhaps not all of it," Aunt Emma agreed, "but you couldn't have stopped her boy's mother from dying, you know."

"No, but it wouldn't have left Alan responsible for him. And that's what I feel he is."

"Maybe you're right," Aunt Emma said, with a relaxing sigh. And then: "Dear me, I hope it all turns out all right."

"It will," Natalie assured her brightly. She had found it a great encouragement to have made up her mind. "But if Alan should be stubborn," she added gravely. "I'll do what I can for the little boy just the same."

That afternoon Natalie arrived in New York, and sent word to Alan from a hotel that she wished urgently to see him.

He was inclined to refuse, but as the hour she had set drew near, he found himself going to her.

A great deal of Natalie's high courage fled with the first sight of Alan's forbidding countenance. And he immediately made it plain that he had no disposition to talk to her.

She found herself rather haltingly telling him what she had come to say. And how different it sounded from the way she had meant to put it. "He would be," she was admitting guiltily, "she continued in this way, a cooler portion of my brain warned her. Still she kept on, and the quieter Alan sat, the more penetratingly he looked at her, the more she floundered."

What a sorry mess she was making of it. She could have cried with humiliation. For Alan's mouth was beginning to twist into a sneer.

He was telling himself that she had come to make a cheaply dramatic gesture over a dead woman's child. She ought to know better, for she was too clever to try denying what she did and renewing her ridiculous charge against Bernadine. She knew he wouldn't stand for that. She ought to know that he would see through this tricky gesture.

He glanced at her hands. What the devil were they reaching for? He sat up stiffly. He knew she hadn't moved them—they were tightly clasped in her lap, but the illusion that they were lifted to appeal to him was disturbingly real.

Natalie stumbled to silence. She knew she had appealed in vain.

"I shouldn't have come," Alan said, with a touch of pity. "We might have spared ourselves this for the whole matter of Bobby Lamont's future, and my own as well, is settled."

"Oh," Natalie thought, frenziedly, "why does he have to be so stiff?" But she did not speak except with her eyes that Alan was unable to evade.

"I'm going to adopt him," he explained in answer to their question.

"Yes, I thought you might do that," Natalie said rushing. "but can you bring him up, Alan, without a woman to help you?"

Watching his hardened face, as he studied her before replying, Natalie felt that she had sunk to the lowest depths of humility in thus throwing herself at him.

The undiminished harshness of his expression made her cringe in dread of his words. She expected a tirade of reproaches, but Alan was not blinking wholly of the past. He was more occupied with the present. This was an hour he had dreamed of in his bitterest moods. Natalie—at his feet!

Her beseeching gaze, her pain-parted lips, the air of supplication that vibrated about her—all these were as he had imagined them. Only himself was there something amiss. He was not enjoying her contrition.

And he had expected it to give him a fierce satisfaction. For it had angered him that she had gone to the end in arrogance—her letter, it had infuriated him. She had seemed to have not a touch of meekness, not a tinge of regret for what she had done. Haughty, disdainful. He had wished the time would come when he could humble her.

AND now it was here. And he was going to humble her. He was going to show her what a miserable mistake she'd made about Bernadine. What a fool she'd been. Oh yes, he was going to do it—but he knew he was going to be cheated out of his anticipated gratification. His beauty would do that to him. His eyes were feasting on it. He knew it. "But it isn't love," he denied hotly.

His face revealed his conflicting emotions. Natalie thought the rush of red to his face—that a moment before had been white—was caused by anger.

She caught her underlip, and held it sharply between her teeth. For one wild moment she was tempted to declare her innocence and beg him to believe her.

He must hate to have her think he was weak enough to take her back, she told herself, trying to read his changing expressions. All appeals would be useless. Still she felt she must convince him that she was sincere in her desire to have little Bobby Lamont as her own.

She made a heroic effort to speak calmly. "You know, Alan," she said, and her voice broke in spite of her. "Whatever you may think of me, that I would make an intelligent mother."

He surprised her by nodding to agreement. In his present mood, she had thought he might take issue with her even on that point.

Her instant of elation vanished, as a sarcastic curl of his lips followed the nod. "Yes, I know that," he said witheringly. "But you should have had children of your own. For you cannot have Bobby Lamont. I am going to adopt him, and when you are granted your divorce decree, I'll marry the girl who is to be his mother."

There's Politics in the Air!

A famous young man was the chauffeur of the plane which brought Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow back to Newark, N. J., from a political meeting in Atlantic City the other day. Here you see Morrow being assisted from the plane. Now look in the front cockpit. Recognize the driver? He's Col. Charles A. Linbergh, son-in-law of the New Jersey senatorial candidate. The famous flyer has not commented on whether he will campaign for Morrow.

Seek Songs of Yesteryear

Old-time songs, the older the better, are wanted by Al and Pete, above, popular songsters of WBBM, Chicago. They're making a canvass of all their fans for ancient songs. Mabel Lewis, inset, red-headed singer of KFI, Los Angeles, is also on the hunt for old-timers. She's searching second-hand bookstores and furniture stores for them.

Rum Runners Pick
Islands For Base

Washington, June 7—(UP)—Two tiny French islands off the coast of Newfoundland in the north Atlantic are soon to become the major center of operations for rum runners smuggling liquor into the United States from Canada, Treasury officials said today.
As a result of the new Canadian law prohibiting legal liquor exports for the United States from Dominion ports, the rum runners are being forced from the Great Lakes and are diverting their extensive liquor traffic by way of St. Pierre and Miquelon.

Reports to Treasury officials charged with prevention of smuggling indicate that thousands of cases of valuable Canadian liquor soon will be leaving the French colony for the United States over the smuggling route along the north Atlantic coast.
"The reported shift in rum runner operations from the Great Lakes area, particularly about Detroit and Buffalo, means that the Coast Guard will have to marshal its forces on the Atlantic coast," Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, Commandant, said today. "We are fully prepared to meet the situation as it arises."
